Mayor Steve Noble applauds newly announced partnership between Health Alliance of the Hudson Valley and Westchester Medical Center Health Network

Kingston, N.Y.

After attending an announcement regarding the new relationship between Health Alliance of the Hudson Valley and Westchester Medical Health Network, Mayor Noble issued the following statement:

“This new affiliation, coupled with the allocation of $88.8 million from the state, reflects a growing trend of investment in the Kingston community. I look forward to working with the leadership of the Health Alliance, Westchester Medical Center, and all of our partners through this process to ensure that City residents are informed of any changes in services, as well as the short and long term impacts of this action. It is my expectation that this new affiliation will benefit our community through improved access to medical care and community-based services, and by expanding the network of resources throughout the region.”

Any additional information regarding the impact of this affiliation on the City will be shared when it becomes available.
